

Investigation Summary Report

Undisclosed Location Covington, LA

HISTORY

For privacy reasons, we have decided to keep the location and name of this investigation confidential. The only history we will disclose is that this area once served as a Priory and was built around the 1950s.

ACTIVITY

This place has been long discussed in local legends as being haunted. When researching this site, we found many urban legends such as kids coming up missing after visiting this location, as well as rooms that once you enter, you never would leave. Obviously, stories conjured up by kids, yet the intrigue of the area quickly drew our attention.

INVESTIGATION

Due to the enormous size of the building, we quickly realized that running a full DVR/Infrared system would be useless, so we decided to go "old school", using only handhelds, digital cameras, voice recorders, and EMF meters. The building is comprised of an ominous entrance, holding a massive altar. The building then branched off into long and narrow wings, containing dorm-style rooms. The place literally looked like something out of a movie, definitely having a "spook factor" to it.

We broke into two small groups to conduct the investigation. About 15 minutes into it, Brandon stepped on a piece of broken glass, going through his shoe and sticking him in his foot (Dangers of Ghost Hunting:) He sat down near the altar to check out his foot. In doing so, he placed his EMF meter on the ground. Humorously, I began filming his foot, not realizing that the EMF meter next to him began going off. This occurred three times, two of which were captured on film. Could this of been a concerned spirit, checking on Brandon's injuries?

Around the same time frame, Mark, Shelly, and Raymond were investigating the other side of the building, conducting EMF sweeps and EVP work. Other than a few additional strange noises, this would be the only first hand "encounters" we had. Next came the analysis process, which would come to be quite interesting! As Mark and Shelly were speaking, they recorded what could possibly be one of our best EVPs yet! After the two speak, you hear a male voice say very clearly, "lights, camera, action". Shelly then calls out to Mark, only to be mocked by the same voice which seems to say, "Mark" as well! It is well known that some spirits have a sense of humor. Could this have been an example of one!? Below you will also find some sound clips that we will let you judge for yourself as to what they are. Additional evidence is still being analyzed so check back soon!
